

DAILY PLANET

www.dailyplanet.com

TALKING ABOUT SUPERMAN AND STUFF

Since 1980

STOLEN PAINTING FOUND BY TREE

Controversy arises as local forest tree in the main park spots valuable, and recently stolen painting. Sources say that the tree was simply photosynthesizing its own business, but witnesses claim that the tree itself stole the painting, as a publicity stunt. Museum manager, Thomas Keets gives his opinion on the matter, "Yeah, all I was doin' was locking up shop n' makin' sure nobody was here no more when I heard a buncha rustlin'. I looked over and the paintin' was gone n' a buncha braches were goin' 'rounda corner." Animal whisperer, Sharon Ramone defends the tree's innocence by communicating with a family of squirrels living inside said tree, "The family was there the whole time, it rarely moves or does anything bad in the park. But I think I did see one weird human dressed up in black trying to be sneaky by climbing up other trees and falling off them, it was funny because he kept running around even though there was a buncha branches stuck to his pants."

WANTED: Somebody to go back in time with me. This is not a joke. P.O. Box 322, Oakview, CA 93022. You'll get paid after we get back. Must bring your own weapons. Safety not guaranteed. I have only done this once before.

Investigations and interrogations are still in effect and a court hearing will begin to see if a tree is capable of being charged for theft. Further news will continue in tomorrow's paper.